(config-router)#neighbor IBGP next-hop-self
(config-router)#neighbor IBGP update-source loopback 0
You must correct the Remote-AS for the Peer-Group to 64520 to form the neighborship correctly.
Watch Out! If you delete the config with " " you also will delete the following lines:
(config-router)#neighbor IBGP peer-group
(config-router)#neighbor IBGP next-hop-self
(config-router)#neighbor IBGP update-source loopback 0
So don't delete the line regarding the "remote-as".
Just replace it with:
(config-router)#neighbor IBGP remote-as 64520
In the Scenario regarding the Lab, they tell you how the routing-table should look if you have done everything right!
So if your routing-table on R1 looks like the one they posted in the scenario you have done everything right and can go on to the next topic.
You have to use the command "#show ip bgp " to show bgp routing
table , don't use "#show ip route" command

NEW QUESTION: 3

Your network contains an Active Directory domain named contoso.com. The domain contains two servers named Server1 and Server2. Both servers run Windows Server 2012 R2. Both servers have the File and Storage Services server role, the DFS Namespaces role service, and the DFS Replication role service installed.

Server1 and Server2 are part of a Distributed File System (DFS) Replication group named Group1. Server1 and Server2 are separated by a low-speed WAN connection.

You need to limit the amount of bandwidth that DFS can use to replicate between Server1 and Server2.

What should you modify?

- A. The cache duration of the namespace
- B. The schedule of the replication group
- C. The staging quota of the replicated folder
- D. The referral ordering of the namespace

Answer: B

Explanation:

Scheduling allows less bandwidth than by limiting the time interval of the replication

Does DFS Replication throttle bandwidth per schedule, per server, or per connection?

If you configure bandwidth throttling when specifying the schedule, all connections for that replication group will use that setting for bandwidth throttling. Bandwidth throttling can be also set as a connection-level setting using DFS Management.

To edit the schedule and bandwidth for a specific connection, use the following steps:

In the console tree under the Replication node, select the appropriate replication group.

Click the Connections tab, right-click the connection that you want to edit, and then click Properties.

Click the Schedule tab, select Custom connection schedule and then click Edit Schedule.

Use the Edit Schedule dialog box to control when replication occurs, as well as the maximum amount of bandwidth replication can consume.
