Explanation:
Since an "intact nuclear family" contrasts with "today's" marital trends, it is clear that the sentence refers to the nuclear family as something out of the past. Thus, for the second blank, a word like traditional (choice (E)) or possibly obsolete (choice (B)) is needed. Choice E is better because the word astonishing sets up the appropriate contrast, whereas the idea that the belief is encouraging suggests a value judgment unsupported by the rest of the sentence.
