NEW QUESTION: 1
How are ADF components shared among applications? (Choose the best answer.)

A. by creating shared application modules and ensuring all developers use them
B. by defining a custom JAR file and sharing it in a source control system
C. by selecting the Shared Library check box when adding libraries and JARs to a project
D. by creating an ADF Library of components and deploying it to a shared location
E. by using a source control system to share components
Answer: D
Explanation:
Explanation/Reference:
If you have JAR files that can be reused by other projects, such as third-part JAR files, you can use
JDeveloper to place them in an accessible location and create a library file (.library) to designate them.
The consumer can use JDeveloper to navigate to this location and add the JAR to the project.
Place the JAR files in an accessible location for both the producer and the consumer of these JAR files.
For example, the directory may be on a network drive where other shared files are located.

NEW QUESTION: 2
Refer to the exhibit.

Which action will solve the error state of this interface when connecting a host behind a Cisco IP phone?
A. Enable errdisable recovery for security violation errors
B. Configure multidomain authentication on this interface
C. Enable port security on this interface
D. Configure dot1x-port control auto on this interface
Answer: B
Explanation:
In single-host mode, a security violation is triggered when more than one device are detected on the data vlan. In multidomain authentication mode, a security violation is triggered when more than one device are detected on the data or voice VLAN. Here we see that single host mode is being used, not multidomain mode.
