NEW QUESTION: 2

Using the balanced scorecard approach, an organization evaluates managerial performance based on

- A. Multiple financial measures only.
- B. Multiple nonfinancial measures only.
- C. Multiple financial and nonfinancial measures.
- D. A single ultimate measure of operating results, such as residual income.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The trend in managerial performance evaluation is the balanced scorecard approach. Multiple measures of performance permit a determination as to whether a manager is achieving certain objectives at the expense of others that may be equally or more important. These measures may be financial or nonfinancial and usually include items in four categories: 1) financial; 2) customer; 3) internal business processes; and 4) learning, growth, and innovation.
