Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2

The spring is fairly with us now. Outside my laboratory window the great chestnut-tree is all covered with the big, glutinous, gummy buds, some of which have already begun to break into little green shuttlecocks.

As you walk down the lanes you are conscious of the rich, silent forces of nature working all around you.

The wet earth smells fruitful and luscious. Green shoots are peeping out everywhere. The twigs are stiff with their sap; and the moist, heavy English air is laden with a faintly resinous perfume. Buds in the hedges, lambs beneath them--everywhere the work of reproduction going forward!

I can see it without, and I can feel it within. We also have our spring when the little arterioles dilate, the lymph flows in a brisker stream, the glands work harder, winnowing and straining. Every year nature readjusts the whole machine. I can feel the ferment in my blood at this very moment, and as the cool sunshine pours through my window I could dance about in it like a gnat. So I should, only that Charles Sadler would rush upstairs to know what the matter was.

Besides, I must remember that I am Professor

Gilroy. An old professor may afford to be natural, but when fortune has given one of the first chairs in the university to a man of four-and-thirty he must try and act the part consistently.

What can be inferred by the narrator's choice of words, "gnat" 2nd paragraph to describe his dance?

A. He is a man small in stature representing the size of a gnat.

B. As a gnat is drawn to light, so is he drawn to the sunlight pouring through his window.

C. He feels new as a gnat that has just been born in the spring.

D. He is agile as are the physical characteristics of a gnat.

E. His dance would replicate the giddy, erratic flight pattern of the gnat.

Answer: E

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Here, the narrator is metaphorically speaking. As gnats don't dance per se, they do fly erratically, and his dance would be just as unpredictable in form and grace.

NEW QUESTION: 3

A public website using round robin DNS is an example of:

A. caching engines.

B. traffic shaping.

C. load balancing.

D. QoS.

Answer: C
